

..... Crystal Happy Heads

Grandfather heard some of you ask questions about the Happy Heads. So he will tell you a little bit. A long long time ago - before you counted days and nights, all the old chiefs had made friends with a crystal head. They were people of great guidance (even though you might say they were just old rocks). To the chief, anything that had the intelligence to be wise and loving were called people. These were stone people and we were always grateful for their loving help. They were the finest healers - ever. The beauty of them was they didn't care who got the credit...they worked together as a unit and understood the complex patterns of the inner working of mother earth. They also knew a lot about the great source of light within them that was nourished by the light in the sky. They shared what they knew and used their power wisely. There were 12 plus 1 of them and (just like the chiefs), you'll have to figure out yourself how many that is.

They were the real teachers of the times. Each head had different characteristics... some of them were funny and some were regal, some were accelerators of the energy of the wheels of creation and some watched...guarding the gateways so life could transcend. They were like the original chiefs who loved them, you could count on them for anything. If you had something to do and didn't have enough people ready to help, they would take a place and hold the vibration of love with such clarity that everything was stable, and all GOOD things could be accomplished.

Grandfather knows you want to know where they came from; all he will tell you is it was a very special, sacred place. They appeared with great trust and still to this day. Dragonfly holds true to his promise of not speaking of their source. There is no reason everyone has to know everything about them - it is more honourable to respect that they came to be of assistance. Besides, when the time is energetically sound, they'll tell you themselves. They came, because the people needed the wisdom they held. They made themselves to look like our heads because that was a real quick way for people to get the message about themselves. LOVE LOVE LOVE, that is all there is! They were amazing, truly AWESOME, and each old chief resonated with one and was a guardian of a stone. When the chiefs and heads all came together, everyone smiled and the heads were happy to be of service. They came to teach the people about love and being full of light, and staying on mother earth at the same time. They came to sing a higher frequency so life could move freely and peacefully and there would be no lack. They were not afraid - they were peaceful and full of joy. They still are, but sometime between then and now the chiefs forgot their purpose, and the people got hungry for control and the balance of life here disappeared. That's when the heads knew the time was not right anymore and they would have to take a step back and wait for the people to remember again. They had all the time in the world because there was no time.

Later on, people told stories as they remembered and the stories got worn out and mixed up. There was a circle of heads all right and it was good - it was ALLways good. In your time, people have tried to use them to scare others, but it was wrong. So those heads shifted their power source so only people who cleared their hearts of anger and jealousy (etc) would hear them talking. They talked a lot; that's why their teeth were so important, even though they didn't really move. There were different kinds of teeth and different shapes of heads, and a long time after Dragonfly's time, there were other shapes that came and tried to pretend to be the ancient wise ones but most people didn't fall for the tricks - their hearts knew the difference. It was OK though, the crystal heads will not play if the vibration is wrong and they still won't. They'll just sit there looking like a pretty rock. The old chiefs 'prepared' to be in their presence especially when more than one came together. It was a big ceremony and good things happened.

These days people want to bring back the circle of original crystal heads, but you can't do it alone..it takes a lot of hearts to create love big enough to do that. It takes more than just the keepers of the heads, and the ones that are keepers need to remember the sacred patterns and align themselves in that way. Dragonfly will be very excited when that day comes again, it will be perfect. Best you practice just being together peacefully with the stones first. Right now, pretty much all of the old heads are invisible, still some good old ones are with you making things ready for their return. Really you don't want all those old ones coming back together yet, because the vibration would be too different from your own. The truth is, it is not your words they listen to, it is your heart... when the love song is perfect, they will return.

Nowadays, people are making heads for you from good stones; they are not old but the stones are old. They are not from the place the first ones came from, but the rocks remember the vibration and are happy to help you or your great grandchildren get ready for the real ones. Some things are still true ...some heads serve you better than others - just like in your own families, all the brothers/sisters don't do things the same. The new heads are coming now, along with some real older ones, to teach you. Some of you like to think you can do every thing by yourself and don't need a teacher - but it's just a word for 'a great gift'. A true teacher doesn't come to tell you what to do, they come to pave a way and open doors so you can find your own way easier. That's good. You gotta remember that when you came to mother earth, a lot of what you knew before was hidden from you - so why not be grateful to have some friends help you remember again. The key to unlocking the mysteries that the heads bring, is you gotta get a lot of special people together on the same track, with love so big - it goes beyond the sky. When you look at a crystal head, look for the love - they will teach you to look beyond the illusion.

Nowadays you got lots of carvers making heads and some of them don't understand the stones they are carving. Some are not patient enough to listen to the invisible heads song while they are carving. The ancient heads would help the carver if they let them! Some carvers do that and then the heads they make are real good tools to help you find your own crystal head inside yourself. Some forget to say their prayers and then they carve heads that look funny... Dragonfly says, no wonder some of them make you uncomfortable because they are not reflecting the crystal's energy. They are energetically unbalanced. So they just get to be 'a carving' with no real purpose. That's because the crystal had to go to a very quiet place. That's a little problem because some of you are judging them all by some that aren't right. You are superimposing your own emotions onto their faces. That's too bad.

When you look at a head with love and no criticism, you begin to unlock the healing. Look for the personality it carries because there is more to it than just a piece of rock. There is a possibility that if the head resonates with you and you can hear its heartbeat - then you can be good friends. They are good fun and like to go places with you and help you make your dreams come true. Soft and gentle, strong and beautiful, kind and loving; special just like the old ones - only different. They are just like the old ones but tuned better to the frequency you can handle now, so you can practice what it's like living with a family like that again... co-creating peace and forgiveness. So many things they will show you by their example - especially how to get along with each other.

I love you very much - as much as I love the water— Grandfather Dragonfly speaks from the spirit of an ancient Vancouver Island Chief who shares his love, wisdom and ways of the 'old ones' with great joy. His speech is slow - thoughtful and 'unpolished' yet always full of love. He is grateful to 'the one who hears crystals singing' for lending him her voice.
