

...GRANDFATHER DRAGONFLY...

2011 - Time To Stand Tall In Your Own Fountain Of Light

Things seem a little crazy on Mother Earth right now, and many people are carrying a heavy load. Grandfather figures maybe it is time to take a deep breath of air and have a good holler and get rid of all that pent up emotion inside you. You've been holding on to that stuff for too long, and sometimes you just have to let it be free. It is time to bathe your wounds and bless your scars from broken arrows. It is time to wrap up your sorrows in golden white light. That old energy can cause you trouble and eat away at your heart and cause you to be bitter. Grandfather has noticed that it changes your course of action and you get yourself off track. This is happening to a lot of people – that's why we need to fix it soon. Even though it 'seems' that others are controlling your heart strings, it is the most important time - to stand tall in your own fountain of light. In the still-point of timelessness between your breath, remember how precious you are and treat yourself accordingly.

I say this is a good day to sing your sound - sing out loud I AM. It is a good sound – it helps you to find yourself again, and remember who you are. Think about the centre of your own big 8 – the perfect point of balance in the infinity of all that you are. When you are centered, the infinity can turn, and twist, and spin like crazy and it's all good fun. But when you are not centered– with all the new high vibrations coming, swirling and twirling and intensifying everything in your life – well, sometimes it's hard not to get influenced by everything else around you. That's when you tend to get off track.

Well the good thing is, your voice is a beautiful vibration... you can feel it yourself and that's when you know it's real. Use it to stay centered. Sometimes you allow other people's realities to seem more important than your own and you start to act like them. Sure it might be you have things to do together, but you each need to be your own bright light as an individual first. When you are there in your center, every breath you take and every step that moves you, is a beautiful collection of who you truly are. Now IS the NOW alright. Special times! There is so much that you can do together – so much you can accomplish, dreams ready to unfold and you know it is powered by the big love you have for each other. When you are all in the centre of your infinite selves it is so easy not to get mad, easy to let the love flow out like a river.

It is true you're very special, and Mother Earth needs you now. Not the plastic you, not the paper doll you, not the stick man you – Mother Earth is calling the real you to come forward again. That beautiful one, the one coded with strands of light, sound, colour. The one who quietly yet powerfully sings the song of your own sacred medicine wheel inside you – you can call it by any name you want – it don't matter. A long, long time ago in the world of ancient medicine– you set aside a very sacred headdress of light - knowing that one day you would want to remember. You knew just the thought of it could help you align back up with your sacred-self. There is only one headdress like yours in the whole world /in the 'all of forever'– how could it be anything else? Some of you might want to close your eyes and ask your great Spirit to show you again. It a simple thing to do, but for some of you it will be the power surge you are looking for.

You came to Mother Earth to carry big love, the brilliance of light, the resonance of the water, and you have the power to move and change the flow. Deep in the love of all that you are, you know how to do this and not hurt anything. That is why you are so special. You know how to do this with out hurting anything! You understand how important that is. But when you are wandering around trying to wear other peoples' headgear that doesn't fit you, it's hard to remember your own. Then you can cause all kinds of trouble for yourself and others. If you are feeling like that right now, look inside and ask yourself to help you remember that you are really an Ancient One, and that ancient one is calling you. You'll know when you are in the right place within, the ancient ones love everything around them and would never hurt another.

There is a light that shines through your eyes when you're on your own pathway. There is a gentle glow that radiates out all around you 360 degrees, that can be felt when you walk in the room, down the street or in the forest.

They say in powerful times, the most powerful people are always tested. It seems to be true on Mother Earth. Still at the same time, the bright ones who are answering the call, have a secret resource. When they reach deep - wholly aligned with that sacred medicine wheel inside of them (the wheel of transformation), there is a richness, an unending source of support at their disposal, to use as they rise up into their full energetic presence. Sometimes it takes some faith, a little dash of trust, a little splash of confidence that you are OK to be who you are. It is more than just OK – the opportunity is splendid and Mother Earth is so excited. She can feel you waking up – she can feel your hearts expanding. She also knows the ones that love you – the water ones, the sky ones and all the other ones. She can feel them lining up with you and that is a sign from the old times that something very, very special is about to happen. This year of 2011 is calling the people and it's calling them now. And all it takes is for the ones that hear the call inside them, to stand up, to listen, and to bravely be themselves... finally.

Dragonfly loves you – like a family. It is important to have a family (a chosen family or one you were born with). It is always important to look after each other – to learn to trust each other. To do good for others, not because you have to but because you can. It is easier to do when you are all lined up and the wind has blown away the cobwebs. Grandfather would say, if you are finding that you are not looking too kindly at your people - speaking harsh words and being 'prickly', then that's your sign that you need to pay some attention to yourself. Soon as you notice, dial up the love... look inside - search your soul - stand in the wind and ask the cobwebs to blow away. The wind is a good friend - it will sweep you clean and lift you to the top of the mountain so you can see clearly and feel the sound of your I AM singing you a love song. If you can't find the wind, then just keep loving each other – the funny thing is, it seems that when you do, everything else starts to line up. It's a miraculous thing just as if all along, it was a divine design.

You would be clever to make good use of these days, cause the angels that sang the songs in 1992 are now singing the next verse. That is very special and Grandfather Dragonfly's Wings of Light are ready to sing with you also.

This is a good day and you are good people and Grandfather is always happy to invite you to sit round his campfire.
